Mediation is supported by Government policy and also the growing awareness of the benefits of mediation amongst the British public.

CP Mediation is able to offer, not only expert quality mediation for clients seeking financial settlements, but also for the most entrenched cases dealing with children's issues. Our mediators have Legal Services Commission recognition and they have extensive mediation experience both in dealing with finance and property issues and child residence and contact problems. HOW CAN MEDIATION HELP

Mediation provides a safe neutral environment in which to discuss things, impartially, in an organised and constructive manner by moving forward, reducing conflict and promoting co-operation.

Mediation allows you to control the discussions affecting your lives.

Mediation is a confidential and voluntary process in which an impartial third party (the mediator) helps you to discuss and negotiate all aspects of your divorce, separation, family breakdown, children and finances.

Having skilled mediators who do not take sides and are sensitive to difficult issues.

Mediation supports parents, divorcing couples, teenage parents, grandparents, adult siblings, parents & adult children, other members of the extended family where communication and/or relationships are problematic about future arrangements for children, property and finances

What can be mediated

Child arrangements, residence of children, parenting, communication, maintenance, child support, finances, holiday arrangements, property, sharing possessions, pensions, endowments, settling of debt, wills and probate, re-establishing contact, care of older relatives and education.

What can mediation achieve

Improved future relationships by moving forward and making a new start

Exploration of all issues helping to identify the real issues and guiding the discussion in an open and fair way

Simplicity - the process is informal, straightforward and constructive

Control - parties remain in control and as mediation is voluntary the process can be stopped or suspended at any time

Flexibility - unique solutions negotiated to suit each particular case

Saves time and avoids the stress of a lengthy legal process

Saves money and legal costs are kept to a minimum

What does it cost

In addition to all the other benefits of mediation the process is a cost effective way of resolving issues. You may qualify for Legal Aid to cover your costs during mediation and for the final documentation. If you do not qualify for Legal Aid the costs are worked out on an hourly basis, per person, at the end of each mediation session and for the preparation of final documentation.

Assessment

You will be required to attend an assessment for the Mediator to provide you with information about the mediation process and assess the suitability of your particular issues for mediation. During the assessment your income will be considered and costs of the next stage of the process will be given to you. The anticipated number of sessions for your particular circumstances will also be discussed with you. The assessment lasts around 1 hour at the hourly rate of £140.00

Mediation Sessions

In our experience issues for mediation are between 2 and 5 sessions which can last between 1 to 1 ½ hours. Our present hourly rate is £140 per person payable at the end of each session. You will be provided with an estimate of the costs of your final documentation at the earliest opportunity
